

Linux Kernel Safety RuleDB - Feature #3314

135: msleep and some other functions take time periods in milliseconds, not jiffies

07/31/2012 10:01 PM - Mikhail Mandrykin

Status: Closed	Start date: 07/31/2012
Priority: Normal	Due date:
Assignee: Mikhail Mandrykin	% Done: 0%
Category:	Estimated time: 0.00 hour
Target version:
Published in build:
Description We should check parameters of some functions from linux/delay.h and linux/sched.h (and maybe some other headers) for being previously converted with the use of msec_to_jiffies or jiffies_to_msec functions. Sample bugfix commit id: d6b6225.
Related issues: Is duplicate of Linux Kernel Safety RuleDB - Feature #2732: 103: Check that m... Resolved 04/10/2012

History

#1 - 08/15/2012 07:46 PM - Vadim Mutilin

merge it with rule 103

#2 - 09/11/2012 08:56 PM - Mikhail Mandrykin

- Status changed from New to Closed

Duplicates Issue #2732