Description

I'm trying to upload job archive on instance with one running job and catch error message:
"There are jobs in progress right now, uploading may corrupt it results. Please wait until it will be finished."

Does it really necessary to restrict this kind of uploading?

- Assignee changed from Evgeny Novikov to Vladimir Gratinskiy
- Priority changed from Normal to Urgent
- Target version set to 2.0

I also met this issue several times last days. I didn't remember exact reasons why this is so. Maybe this is because of uploading a job archive can take quite much time during which reports of solved jobs couldn't be uploaded. But everything changes from that time. Now even large job archives are uploaded very quickly while blocking requests likely doesn't result in failing job solutions.
